CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE TO MEET AT EL CAJON

ALL TEACHERS INVITED TO CONFERENCE

NOTED SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD AT SESSIONS

All teachers of this district are invited to attend the second sub-regional conference of the southern section, California branch of the Progressive Education Association, to be held in Russ auditorium of San Diego High school Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 11 and 12. The theme will be "Resources for Education in a Democratic Society."

Miss Ada York, county superintendent of schools, says this is an important conference and it is hoped there will be a large attendance of county teachers.

Outstanding speakers from the East will be heard. In addition discussion groups have been arranged in which the audience is invited to participate. The public is invited.

Rabbit Breeders to Hold Table Show

The San Diego County Rabbit Breeders association will hold a Table Show at Encanto Park Sunday Oct. 15. The choicest of the herds of many county breeders will be exhibited. Prizes and ribbons will be given to the winners of all classes. The public is invited to attend for an enjoyable day. There will be a potluck dinner with the association furnishing coffee, sugar and milk.

The directors say: Have you a choice bunny? Then bring it to the show and take home a prize. Entry fee ten cents per head.

FINE PROGRAM FOR TOWNSEND CLUB

Particularly fine will be the Townsend Club program Tuesday, Oct. 10, officers state. It will be put on by Meglin-Fanchon & Marco children under direction of Miss Margie Hallack. It is free and the public is cordially invited.

The program will be preceded by a potluck supper; everybody take their own service; coffee furnished.

There was a good attendance at last Tuesday night's meeting. The club wishes to thank Mrs. Barnett of Boston for the lovely program she presented.

Avocado Growers To See Frost Control Wind Machine at Work In Escondido

Avocado growers will meet at Escondido on Monday October 9th, at 6:30 p.m. at the Chat and Chew Cafe. All growers are urged to come including the wives. Reservations will be helpful.

Chairman Ambrose DeBard and Vice-Chairman Guy F. Peto of Vista and Secretary Miss Margaret Watson of Grossmont have outlined the year's program of work. They have decided upon three main objectives. First - The avocado program at the Farm Bureau State Convention at San Diego November 13th to the 16th, which 2000 avocado producers and other California farmers are expected to attend. Second - A booklet will be prepared giving the recommendations of the Department in relation to cultural practices. Third - Factual information on marketing is to be developed and made available to members.

Postmasters Notified That U. S. Can't Pay Any Indemnity for Torpedoed Mail

Everyone admits that Uncle Sam does a fine job in his capacity as postmaster and mail carrier. For a nickel he will carry for you a letter to the ends of the earth. But the old gentleman at Washington cannot pay an indemnity for loss of registered articles addressed to foreign countries when such loss is due to "force majeure."

This is explained in a bulletin received from Ambrose O'Connell, second assistant postmaster general by Postmaster Thomas F. Helm.

In case you've forgotten, Uncle Sam is careful to explain that "force majeure" means causes beyond control.

One such force beyond his control is a German submarine. Another is a mine of the kind laid by English, French, Germans and Italians, not to mention Russians, in various European waters. The bulletin doesn't mention such wartime playthings as submarines and mines. Uncle Sam is strictly neutral, you know. But it does refer to the fact that by the sinking on the night of Sept. 15 of the Belgian motor vessel Alex Van Opstal, which sailed from New York on Sept. 6 for Antwerp, Belgium, 64 sacks of mail of United States origin were lost, including 13 sacks of registered mail.

If any local people sent mail to Belgium or Luxemburg late in August and it failed to reach its destination they will know that this was due to "force majeure" and they also will now know that Uncle Sam cannot pay an indemnity for any loss.

ATTORNEY MITCHELL DISTRICT PRESIDENT

Attorney Allen Mitchell was elected president of the board of directors of Lakeside Irrigation District at the last meeting. Mr. B. J. Conrad is treasurer and collector, succeeding Thomas F. Helm.

MUST HAVE GAS MASK

People in England who fail to carry a gas mask are fined, if caught. There is a $500 penalty for showing a light at night.

GO AFTER DEER BUT BRING FISH HOME

Getting up at 3 a.m. to go after deer in the mountains shows ardent sportmanship.

Dawn was still a long way from breaking last Friday when Charles Andrews and son Jimmy and Charles Lucas and son Charles of Lakeside Farms made a break for the haunts of deer in the neighborhood of Cedar Lake. The deer, however, stayed under cover so the result of the hunt, as far as venison was concerned, was nil.

The two boys however got something in return for their early rising. Between them they got 35 fish; nothing particularly large, of course, but proof of the fact that the early fisherman can catch 'em with a worm.

SIX WEEKS BIBLE COURSE ANNOUNCED AT LOCAL CHURCH

Under the leadership of Rev. Alfred Marquam of El Cajon, a six weeks course on the Old Testament will be given at Lakeside Community Church beginning on Tuesday October 10 and running until November 14th, from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. This class is open to all who wish to attend. It should prove especially interesting and stimulating under this fine leadership, says Pastor Nalbach.

Plan Playground on Palomar Summit

Palomar mountain, where the world's largest telescope is being installed, is to be made into one of the finest playgrounds in California, local men learned at the dinner-meeting of San Diego's Chamber of Commerce publicity committee at the Carlsbad hotel last Friday. Chairman Matt Gleason of the State Park Commission made the announcement.

Lakeside Chamber of Commerce was represented at the meeting by Noel N. Sands, secretary.

Details of the recreation project will be given when the State Park Commission meets in San Diego Oct. 23 to 25.

WANT TO JOIN THE COAST ARTILLERY?

In line with President Roosevelt's order to increase the strength of the National Guard the 21st Coast Artillery Regiment is calling for recruits. Col. John H. Sherman announces that a recruiting officer will be on duty at the entrance to the State Building, Balboa Park, San Diego, from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday and Wednesday. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 45 years and in good physical condition. The work does not interfere with civilian occupation, Col. Sherman says.

RALLY DINNER WILL PROMOTE CHURCH WORK

FINE FELLOWSHIP AND INSPIRATION TO BE ENJOYED

Tonight's potluck dinner at 6:30 at the Community Church will be a rally of much importance to Lakeside, it is predicted. Pastor Thomas I. Nalbach reports that all leaders and officers of the church will take part and "fine fellowship and inspiration are to be enjoyed." He adds:

"The community is invited to attend and become acquainted with the work of the church and its program for the coming year."

The quarterly Communion Service is to be held Sunday, Oct. 8, at the morning hour of worship. All members are asked to come.

New Phone Directory Being Distributed

With an enlarged introductory section, printed on blue paper, the new telephone directory is now being distributed, according to Mrs. P. L. Anderson, manager of the Southern California Telephone Company at El Cajon.

She reports that the introductory section contains much interesting information on long distance service and rates, together with material on other services, such as teletype-writer, conference and overseas service.

Telephone users are advised by Manager Anderson to look up numbers in the new directory before placing calls, particularly when calling San Diego, where 2800 telephones in the Hillcrest district have new numbers with the prefix Woodcrest.

Grossmont Alumni To Give Thriller

Foothill Echoes announces that Grossmont alumni have chosen "The Bat" for their annual play to be given at Grossmont auditorium Friday, Nov. 3.

Associated Student Body commissioners at Grossmont are Bob Kokernot, arts, president; Jack Self, public works; Norman Green, athletics; James Lewis, affairs; Phyllis McGrath, finance; Vicky Gregory, welfare.

JUNIOR CHOIR STARTS

A Junior Choir has been started at the Community Church. Tryouts were held Tuesday. Judges were Mrs. Marian Conroe, Mrs. Frances Smith and the Rev. T. I. Nalbach.

California Newspaper Week To Be Well Featured By Four Hundred Papers

Next week will be Newspaper Week in California. It is sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers Association through its membership of nearly 400 leading weekly and daily newspapers of the State.

Newspaper Week has been proclaimed by Gov. Culbert L. Olson, Oct. 8 to 14. John B. Long, manager of the C. N. P. A., recalls that California's first newspaper was published August 15, 1846. It was issued at Monterey.

JOINT SESSION WILL DISCUSS ACTIVITIES

LOCAL MEMBERS ARE URGED TO MAKE RESERVATIONS

Lakeside Chamber of Commerce officers have accepted an invitation of the El Cajon Valley C. of C. to hold a joint session at the Knowles House Oct. 16. Dinner will be at 6:45 p.m.

This will take the place of the usual monthly dinner of the local chamber.

Secretary S. M. Stafford of the El Cajon body states they want Attorney Allen Mitchell president of the Lakeside group to tell about planned activities for the coming year.

Local members are asked to make reservations early with Secretary Noel Sands at the Lakeside Farmer office.

PTA Meets Tuesday Evening at School

By Mrs. Dorothy Morton Publicity Chairman

The regular meeting of the Lakeside P. T. A. will be held Tuesday evening, October 10th, at the School at 7:30. Mrs. Dewey Buckel has arranged a miscellaneous program. The eighth grade mothers will be hostesses.

The benefit card party will be held Friday the 13th at the School. Come one come all. Bridge and 500, and Chinese Checkers will be played, with door prizes and a comfort given away. Tickets 25 cents. Save this evening.

Receives Trophy for Hereford Heifer

When a boy in the 7th grade at Lakeside Elementary school captures a special trophy at a fair in competition with the whole county he has cause to feel proud and the school also takes pride in the fact.

On Tuesday last Charles Lucas Jr. was presented by Fred Dorman, Farm Bureau advisor, with a big bronze trophy which bore these words: "San Diego County Fair 1939. Special award, Hereford heifer, won by Charles Lucas."

Mr. Dorman brought the trophy out himself and congratulated Charles not only on his win but on the interest he takes in farming under the supervision of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas of Lakeside Farms.

Charles exhibited the trophy at the school Wednesday and will make, in the manual training department, a suitable case for it.

When wife told hubby she had baked a cake for their anniversary he remarked, "ah, yes, another milestone."

ISN'T THIS TRUE?

When I'm relaxing in something chic
The doorbell doesn't so much as squeak,
But let me roll my hair in tin
And watch my wretched friends drop in.
—Alyce Hamilton in the Saturday Evening Post

FARM BOY AND GUN

"Bye, baby hunting, mama's gone a hunting."

This being one of our "do you remember" days we'll ask whether you recall singing that old rhyme—or don't you? Anyhow, it's probable that mama doesn't have much time to go hunting nowadays, what with cooking and clubs, and meetings, missions, and miscellaneous matters that keep her busy from sunrise to far beyond sunset.

But daddy and the boy—they can always find time to go out with a gun whenever the game laws will allow.

Local sportsmen have been chasing deer and doves and soon they will be trying for ducks. They obey the age-old instinct that comes down to them from Nimrod, that grandson of Ham who was spoken of as "a mighty hunter before the Lord."

The sons of our local hunters carry on the tradition for, from an early age, farm boys enjoy their constitutional right to carry guns. We civilized folk are sometimes rather scared to make too close an acquaintance with the boy and his gun. We prefer to give him "a wide berth."

That fear would be removed if all boys would read, mark, learn and inwardly digest an article in the October issue of "Successful Farming," in which W. W. Wheatly writes about "When a Farm Boy Gets His Gun." Mr. Wheatly gives excellent advice about choice of gun and ammunition, the way the weapon should be handled, and safety precautions. Very important, those last. Why not get a copy of the magazine and have your boy read the article?

CHAIN STORES PAY BIG TAXES

It has become something of a political sport to abuse and denounce the chain store industry—but all branches of government would find themselves searching hard for new sources of revenue if the taxes the stores pay were lost to them.

A survey was recently made of 138 leading chain companies, representing all sizes and types, to find out just what they contribute to government in taxes. And it was discovered that in a typical year their taxes came to 2.94 per cent of their total sales—and more than 60 per cent of their earned profits.

It was also found that the chains on the average, pay $215 in taxes for every employee, and $3,108 for every store. As evidence that the chains pay every conceivable type of tax that can be levied against retail business, the fact is cited that one typical company had on its books records of payments of 200 different kinds of taxes.

All of this illustrates the folly of any law or movement designed to destroy a legitimate business. The inevitable result is loss of taxes, loss of employment, a decline in property values, and a reduced national income. What this country needs today is more business, not less, if we are to have better times—and more competition not less, if the consumer is to get a decent break—and more retail outlets, not less, if the farmer and manufacturer are to extend their markets.

The public seems to be slowly awakening to the fact that business-baiting laws destroy employment and raise prices. The thinking people of America, after observing a policy of destruction, want a new policy of construction, says the Industrial News Review of Portland, Oregon.

Can we keep out of war? asks San Jacinto Valley Register. Not if you want to stay alive. Life's a battle from the cradle to the grave.

Vista Press wants to know what's become of the war in China? It's been transferred to kitchen sinks.

TO ESCAPE IS COWARDLY

Oh! the pearl seas are yonder,
The gold and amber shore;
Shires where the girls are fonder,
Towns where the pots hold more.
And here we fret and molder
By grange and rick and shed
And every moon are older,
And soon we shall be dead.

Professors write that way sometimes. A sedate and most respectable professor of one of the leading universities of England was the author of the above. It is one of the too few contributions that make up the slim volume entitled "Poems," written by A. E. Housman. For a time it created almost as much of a sensation as that other book by a learned educator entitled "Alice in Wonderland." Such works go to show that professors are human after all.

Housman simply told in beautiful language the longing all feel at one time or another, especially when fed daily on war news, to "get away from it all." We feel at times as if we want to throw the radio out of the window, chuck the newspapers in the fire, and go far, far away out of the reach of the word "war." It is then that we like to dream of the pearl seas and the gold and amber shore. In other words we want to escape from that monster Mars.

But what's the use? You know it can't be done. And after all the "escape" method is no way for a man. Everybody must endure what the gods send. As an ancient philosopher said, "quietly expect everything which can happen and endure that which has already happened." And again: "Remember that thou art an actor in a play; it is your duty to act well the part that is given to you; but to select the part belongs to another,"—the Great Director.

WOMAN'S STOOP IS COSTLY

"When lovely woman stoops to folly and finds too late that men betray"—well, you know what happens. But it's different when she stoops to pick up a golf ball—then it's the man who pays.

National Open Champion Byron Nelson lost a ball in a recent golf match. This cost him two strokes on the 15th hole on his final round. Without that penalty he would have finished second to gain $750 prize money; instead he got $450 for fourth place. Champion Nelson was out $300 because of that lost ball.

No use mourning over lost money, however. Nelson took the loss gamely. A little later he received an anonymous letter from New York in which was a money order for $300 and this explanation:

"A lady in our party unwittingly picked up your ball. I did not learn of it until it was too late. She knows nothing about the game... and as the lady was my guest I feel responsible."

Champion Nelson is a good sport and so is the anonymous writer.

WHAT'S THE HURRY?

Officials assert that a recent auto accident in which six persons were injured, one fatally, was, in their belief, caused by excessive speed. Commenting on high speed motorists the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club asks:

What is the reason for so much hurry and rush? Is it the desire to show off, or the wish to save a few minutes? If either, the motorist is a poor gambler for he risks a life against the saving of a few seconds and appeal to his ego. It is unsporting for drivers to speed—not only unfair to themselves, but to their families and to others using the highway; it isn't fair to pedestrians who depend on driver-judgment.

"Return the purse but keep the money," is a headline in San Juan Capistrana Dispatch. Maybe it's Utopia money and not so valuable as the wallet.

Escondido Times-Advocate reports the Circle-R ranch of 780 acres has been bought by a Santa Monica turfman. Wise man; he gets away from the windy watery weather of the coast.

La Mesa Scout tells this one: A customer grumbled to his tailor that the sleeves of his coat were a "mile" to long. How much shall I take off? asked the tailor. Oh about half an inch, said the grumbler. Some people don't enjoy life unless they can kick.

High winds hit here, says Oceanside News. Maybe it was only one of those "paid political broadcasts" now disturbing the air.

Let's mind our own business—such as it is. That's the advice of a Georgia Democrat.

Scientist says fish are the only "creatures" not troubled with influenza. But who wants to be a fish—unless it's Hamilton?

In this day you must not only put out a good product but advertise it, declares Westminster Gazette.

It has been said that an honest man is the noblest work of God. However San Diego Citizen says it seems operations have been suspended in some sections.

The Country Garden

By Margaret Tipton Wheatly

GARDEN ROUTINES

Every task or endeavor has its routine which is in turn its rhythm. One writer expresses this nicely in "even the very routines of life have their rhythms. Routine brings orderliness to our actions, and makes for ease in accomplishing our everyday tasks.

There are certain things that require doing every day, and this routine the garden cannot escape. But how much pleasure can be the routine for gardening if we are fully awake to the beauties when doing the everyday things, such as tending the potted plants on the terrace, in the lath house or cold frame.

Unlike the ever-present dishes and clothes waiting, which never change, the potted plants which must be watered each morning, and incidentally this is THE time to do it, present some change each day. A new leaf, a bud, an opening or fading flower to be removed or admired. It is this element of change, of growth, that makes the garden routine differ from those of our other daily tasks.

WAYS TO ORDER

We all know that convenience of equipment makes for ease in our work. In the Popular Science Monthly (see at the local library) for June, page 154 you will find a little device which will do away with that trotting about from back porch to garage or wherever you do keep your tools. This little garden basket cleverly contrived from a nail keg will hold all the small tools and hose nozzles, washers and the different kinds of garden gloves. So light, it is easily carried about with one, it will be a step saver for you.

WIRE TRELLISES

There are ways of making wire trellises which are superior in many ways to wooden ones. They require no painting and are inconspicuous. When the house is being painted they may be unhooked, laid down on the ground and replaced after the painting is completed.

A looped wire trellis much favored by Miss Kate Sessions and which has had thorough trials is made by taking a length of galvanized wire somewhat longer than the height the trellis is to be, and beginning near one end twist loops about ½ inch in diameter about a foot apart. Bend a loop in the other end to hook into a strong screw hole in a rafter end or other strong timber of the structure. The vine is tied to these loops as it grows taller. The looped wire trellis is not secured at the bottom. The weight of the vine keeps it down.

The other trellis is the best I have found for the delightful Carolina jasmine, and other twiggly, twining vines, consists merely of a foot wide strip of chicken mesh attached at the top to screw hooks up which the vine climbs by means of its tendrils requiring no further attention in the way of tying up.

NEW STAKES

The early rains loosening old stakes and the accompanying strong winds breaking the ties has made considerable work in the garden. Some vines have blown down completely. This is beneficial in some ways; it brings them into a much easier position for pruning. And while they are prone they should be given a good going over before replacing them on their trellises.

Do you have trouble staking plants? Try cutting forked mums, plumbago, Michaelmas Daisies and other "rangey" plant? Try cutting forked branches from trees such as the willow with considerable strong limb structure, and having someone hold up the plants, slip this brush underneath. Thus branches of the plants do not have to be tied up in bundles and so have much of their natural grace and charm destroyed.

BOY, YOU SAID IT

Closer to the truth than he meant to be was the schoolboy who wrote on an examination paper: "The Armistice was signed on the 11th of November in 1918 and since then every year there has been Two Minutes' Peace."—Neal O'Hara in New York Evening Post.

Red Cross Roll Call To Start Nov. 11

The annual Red Cross roll call has not been combined with the Community Chest campaign as in other years, and instead will be conducted independently during the traditional period, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, it is announced by San Diego Chapter. Reason for the change, it was explained, is that the chapter desired to have the local roll call conform with the national enrollment of Red Cross members, which since the World War has always begun on Nov. 11.

San Diego Chapter is now preparing for the roll call, which it will conduct in the city and throughout the county.

Washington, Oct. 2 (Auto-caster)—The final answer of Congress to President Roosevelt's plea to repeal the embargo on arms and ammunition to belligerent nations hinges, in the long run, on public sentiment; and Senators and Representatives began, as soon as they had convened in special session, to get expressions of public sentiment which were quite the opposite of what the President and most of the members of Congress had believed was the way the people of the United States felt.

The President's clearly stated desire to keep the United States out of war met with an overwhelming response of approval. Almost as unanimous are the expressions of sympathy with the Allied cause as against Hitler, which are included in the record-breaking volume of mail and telegrams addressed to the White House and the Capitol. No such voluminous and widespread public interest has been shown in any question with which Congress has had to deal at any time in the past.

Literally hundreds of thousands of letters have poured in. On the first day after the historic special session opened, one Senator alone received more than 28,000 letters from the people of his state.

FAVOR EMBARGO

But while the President's mail and telegrams were almost unanimous in their praise of his speech to the Congress, with its repeated declaration that the purpose of the American people is to keep out of war, and his assertion that the way to be truly neutral is to repeal the arms embargo provisions, at least, of the present neutrality law, the tenor of the letters which came to Capitol Hill is a stout denial that the President's program will keep us out of war, and an appeal to retain the arms embargo as a safe-guard of peace.

Some of the letters indicate clearly that they have been inspired by different "peace blocs," but a surprisingly large proportion are spontaneous, individual communications from people who earnestly believe that the Neutrality Act as it stands insures American neutrality in the European conflict and so will keep us out of war.

POLLS DIFFER

The latest nation-wide polls of public opinion by the agencies engaged in checking up on what people think tell a somewhat different story, with as high as 53 percent of voters in favor of amending the Neutrality Act, or repealing it entirely.

All of these expressions and reports of public opinion will be reflected in the debate in the Senate, where the battle will be waged most bitterly, and will influence the final vote of Congress. Those debates will be influenced, as doubtless many of the expressions by voters are influenced, by partisan political consideration.

LANDON'S STATEMENT

Governor Landon, in a public statement, declared that the grave national issue of keeping out of war is clouded by the shadow of the widespread belief that the President desires a third term in his high office. There is no doubt that some of the opposition in the public mind and among Senators and Representatives to adoption of the President's program is based upon the belief that, in one way or another, it might be used to further his candidacy for a third term in the White House.

The dominant belief here is that when it comes to a showdown in Congress the President will get what he asked for. In that case a rush of war orders from Europe is expected and there will be something of a business boom, for which the Administration will get credit,

Turkey Production Increases Rapidly

By Ralph H. Taylor
(Executive Secretary, Agricultural Council of California)

Thanksgiving Day and Christmas dinner menus may be quite a way off, from the standpoint of the housewife -- but California turkey growers are already busy with preparations for the holiday trade!

California's 1938 turkey crop was more valuable than that of any other State. And the growers have hopes of clinching California's title this year as No. 1 Turkey State of the Nation.

The 2,625,000 turkeys produced in this State last year were valued at $8,348,000, a total greater than that returned to growers from many important tree and vegetable crops.

For the Nation, the average price per turkey in 1938 was $2.46, while California birds brought an average of $2.98.

Turkey production in the United States has increased rapidly during the last three years, according to the Federal Crop Reporting Service, with California forging to the front as a leading turkey producing area. Improved methods of handling and feeding, with greatly reduced mortality of poults, have lessened the cost of production materially. And the turkey, once mainly a holiday bird, is now competing more closely with chickens and other meats.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" This question is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all churches of Christ, Scientist. The Golden Text is from the Psalms: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases."

A citation from the Bible presents these verses about Jesus from Luke: "After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest." These words from Mark are also included: "And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; . . . they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy are also presented: "The words of divine Science find their immortality in deeds, for their Principle heals the sick and spiritualizes humanity." "It is possible,--yea, it is the duty and privilege of every child, man, and woman,--to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

Don't know how many miles a day local school buses are driven. But listen to this from the Arlington Times: To take pupils home after school a teacher in a New Zealand district high school drives a bus 280 miles a day.

More Schools to Get Game Control Troops

Every high school in San Diego county is destined to have a troop of the Junior Game Patrol, according to State Warden Charles H. Edmondson, who recently visited San Diego in preparation to continue the work started here last winter by the State Fish and Game department.

Three troops were organized last winter at the San Diego. Hoover and Grossmont High Schools, with a membership of about 200 students. It is the plan of Edmondson to increase this membership throughout the county to a membership of at least 1000. Students between the ages of 15 and 21 will be accepted after a six-week's preparatory period and an entrance examination.

The organization of these troops, aided by Coordinating Councils is the novel plan of the State Fish and Game department to teach conservation, good sportmanship and better citizenship to both boys and girls for the latter sooner or later will be included in the program. Members will be invested with every privilege of state fish and game wardens except that of law enforcement.

They, upon passing final examinations will be issued a state fish and game badge, wear a natty uniform of the department and receive the same training that wardens receive. This includes training in wild life lore, knowledge of the fish and game laws, conservation, art of trapping and the proper handling of firearms. Also included will be hikes with overnight camps actual training on field trips and trips on the ocean for the study of marine life. Troops will hold weekly meetings.

Application blanks for entrance to the troops will be distributed soon to all the high schools in the county as rapidly as Edmondson can carry out the work.

SCHOOLS

Few men in Lakeside have had a more stirring career than Captain Josiah Grundy of Greenhill Farm. The boys of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Union Elementary School are to enjoy hearing the life story of this master mariner, who first went to sea when he was 14 years of age. He started last Friday to read his autobiography to the boys and will continue the reading one hour a week till the entertaining history is completed.

Andy Nollet, editor of the Static, the school newspaper, reminds pupils that Captain Grundy has given the school several models of ships, and paintings, all his own work. His latest donation is one in plaster, mounted on canvas, and having the appearance of a ship riding the waves. It is a duplicate of one he sent to President Roosevelt. Supt. Cander has had it placed in the hall near the office.

A book on models of square-rigged ships, in which Capt. Grundy and W. W. Wheatly collaborated, will soon be available.

The safety group held its first meeting in the school office Sept. 27. The officers are: President, Russell Brandt; secretary, Beverly Hartley; others, Katie Ruiz, Rudolph Ames, Edwin Brown, Rosalie Close, Dorothy Strange, Jimmie McClain, Jerry Nelson, Delfina Domenaigoni, Loretta Hopkins, Obert Barnett, Rose Mary Martin, Ernest Fortner and Anna May Silvis.

GRADE OFFICERS

New officers of the seventh grade are: President, Tommy Brandt; vice-president, George Pepper; treasurer, Marie Smith; librarians, Lucille Vance and Frances Silvis; supplies monitors, Raymond Avra and Betty Wetzel; safeties, Rose Mary Martin, Russell Brandt and Beverly Hartley.

Mainly About People

By Lorena Sands

Lakeside, Oct. 6, 1939

Dear Eleanor:

It's about time to hear the resounding thud of the football, isn't it? Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Lake are to be in Los Angeles over the weekend and are planning to attend the football game at the Coliseum on Saturday. They were entertained at dinner Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Goodman, and I understand, had a most enjoyable evening.

A niece of Mrs. Mary Beisigl has come from New Salem, No. Dakota to stay with her. She is Miss Gertrude Schmitt.

Do you happen to know Major McCord of Pasadena? He has been in Lakeside visiting his son Mr. Sam McCord for a few days.

We have the most unusual lily of an intense coral pink. Mr. Arthur Johnson brought it from his garden. It is a native of the Isle of Guernsey, hence its name Guernsey Lily. Several beautiful red and pink roses made up the bouquet.

George Gibson went on a fishing trip last Tuesday and didn't even fish! He was up at Cuyamaca Lake and said it was much too cold. Well it seems that it isn't too cold to go ice skating tho'. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Williams of Ramona and Esther Rhodes enjoyed that sport in San Diego on Saturday night.

Our neighbors, the John Hartleys entertained a friend from Los Angeles Miss Dorothy Roberts, over the last weekend. They went dancing at Santee Saturday night.

Did you hear that Mrs. Annie Swearingin fell last week and injured her arm. She has regained the use of it.

Delores Huffman, of Palm City visited with the Huffmans here yesterday.

The W. W. Wheatleys have gone to Fresno for 3 months. Mrs. Wheatly will still continue the Country Garden column however.

I think our friend James A. Farley should be very happy that I have written a letter this week—you know its "write a letter week"

And now for the present
Goodbye—
Lorena

MARY COLWELL WEDS W. A. BRIGHT

A surprise to many of her Lakeside friends is the marriage of Mrs. Mary Colwell to Mr. W. A. Bright of Thatcher, Arizona. The ceremony took place in Phoenix, Arizona, Sept. 15, 1939. The couple will live in Thatcher, Mr. Bright's residence.

W.P.A Reduction Hit By Congressman

Many people in San Diego county have been hit by the reduction in the amount appropriated by Congress last session for W. P. A. needs. Projects calling for the expenditure of more than $5,000,000 in this county have had to be returned from Washington for "lack of funds." In addition a number of people in this county have lost the employment they had under the W. P. A. because the number of employees had to be cut.

Local people have received from Congressman Jerry Voorhis copies of speeches in which he opposed the reduction in the W. P. A. program and told of the hardships which must be endured by persons dropped from

Local Men Prepare For Duck Hunting

Local hunters will read the following with interest:

Presence of large numbers of ducks on Southern California lakes and ponds so early in the fall indicates a good season ahead for local hunters from October 22 to December 5, reports the outing bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Federal waterfowl regulations set hunting hours from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. All persons over 16 hunting migratory waterfowl in addition to regular hunting license, are required to have with them an unexpired Federal migratory bird hunting stamp validated by signature on the stamp. The cost is $1 and it may be purchased at any postoffice.

The three-shell limit on repeating shotguns, either hand-operated or auto-loading, is continued. It is unlawful to hunt waterfowl by means of bait or the use of live duck or geese decoys, regardless of the distance between the bait or decoys and the hunter. It also is illegal to use shotguns larger than 10 gauge or to hunt with bow or arrow.

While ducks are plentiful, outing bureau scouts report that few geese have been seen so far this year. Limits on these birds have been reduced from five to four per day, it was announced.

the rolls, and also by their families.

B. Lundh of Santee has sent this paper copies of the Voorhis speeches. Owing to the limited amount of space at our disposal it is impossible to publish them. Persons interested may write to Congressman Jerry Voorhis, Washington, D. C., and get copies from him. He will also be glad to send a copy of his bill to restore to Congress the sole power to issue money and to regulate its value.

Well-drawn zoning ordinances are heartily approved by F.H.A.

CHAPTER II

Synopsis

Nineteen-year-old Anne Ordway realizes suddenly that something is wrong between her father and mother. She hears servants whispering and senses tension when her mother asks her father for money before her bridge game with the Dorsays—and David. Anne adores her beautiful mother, Elinor, and her father, Francis, and she had always liked and trusted their old friend David. Yet it is David about whom the servants are whispering. Vicky, Anne's companion, is aware of the situation, too. Anne steals away to meet Garry Brooks in the moonlight and they meet a strange man at a campfire.

"I'm Anne Ordway," she said, "and this is Garrett Brooks." "My name," he said, "is Charles." He stopped there. "Why tell you the rest of it? Out here under the moon it would be nice to be Charles and Anne." He added as an afterthought, "And Garry."

Anne gasped, then laughed a little as Garry said, "She's Anne only to her friends."

"Which is as it should be." The stranger lifted the coffee pot from the coals. "And now that we have settled that, may I serve you?"

Anne knew that nothing was settled and that Garry was raging. But she had a sense of sudden excitement. She seated herself on a flat rock and spread out her flounces. She liked this stranger. She wanted to hear him speak again, and contentment came over her when at last he sat on the grass at her feet and talked to her in a lazy monologue, interrupting himself now and then to replenish the fire or to ask if anybody wanted more coffee.

He talked of the sheep. "That's why I stopped here. I lived once on a ranch in the west and looked out like this over the flocks at night."

"Will you run me off the place if I decide to stay until morning?" he asked.

"But where will you sleep?" "I have a couple of blankets in my car, and there's no softer bed than pine needles."

"Come up and have breakfast with us in the morning."

He shook his head. "You are much too good to me. But I mustn't."

"Why not?"

The ignored and outraged Garry broke in, "They'll be sending out a tracer for you, Anne."

"They won't miss me. Mother's mind is on her bridge, and Vicky never worries." She looked down at the man at her feet. "Tell me more about your ranch."

"No. This time I'll tell you about my island in the Chesapeake and my ducks. I've tamed a lot of wild ones and made a bird refuge. My grandfathers were famous hunters of game, but I'd rather see my ducklings wigwagging their tails than being shot at sunrise."

"I wish I might see them," Anne ventured.

"I wish you might." He broke off suddenly. "I mustn't keep you."

"You're not keeping me," Anne said. Then, realizing with a sense of dismay that it was a definite dismissal, she rose and held out her hand. "Good night."

He kept her hand for a moment in his firm clasp. "It has been wonderful to have you sit by my fire."

She left him then and ran, breathless, after Garry who had started up the hill. "You didn't say good night, Garry."

"Why should I?" "I think you're hateful," she flared, running on ahead of him towards the house.

They came to the living room to find Anne's mother again at the piano. But she had changed her dress and she was not alone. David Ellicott was leaning on the piano, his eyes fixed on Elinor.

Her mother, all flushed and smiling, said, "Where have you been, darling?"

"Up the little hill with Garry." Garry, ignoring Anne completely, talked with Elinor and David until the Dorsays came. And Anne was glad to be ignored. She sat on a low seat by the fire and thought about the man in the meadow.

Then all at once into the mirror before her came the dark head of Garry. It was such a good looking head. Anne had to admit that. Smooth black hair, a bronzed skin, a thin line of black mustache above the lip.

"Your mother sent me to ask if you'll ride with us in the morning," Garry said. "She has asked David. We're to have coffee first and then come back here for waffles and honey."

"Oh!" Anne's mind worked swiftly. Her mother and David! "Of course I'll go," she said.

Garry stood looking at her. "You needn't think you can run away from me forever. I won't have it."

"I don't want to run. We've always been good friends, Garry."

"Don't be bromidic." He walked away, saying over his shoulder, "I'll see you tomorrow."

She called after him, but he paid no attention, and presently David came and dropped down beside her. "Going to ride with us in the morning?"

"Yes."

"Good. And now tell me what you've been doing to Garry?"

"Nothing."

"Except to let him fall in love with you?"

"I didn't let him."

"Well, he's done it. And now you've got to watch your step, or you'll be marrying him."

She shrugged her shoulders. "Why not?"

"Because I don't want you to marry anybody. I want you just to keep on being yourself."

She flashed a smiling glance at him and he smiled back. Darling David! Her fears left her as he sat there talking quietly. He was unchanged.

Why think again of those evil voices she had heard behind the hedge?

Elinor called, "We're ready, David," and Anne rose with him and said good night to her mother's friends. Trailing up the stairs a little later with Jerry, the kitten, under her arm, she stopped and looked down. The four players were seated at the card table—Cynthia Dorsay with her honey-colored locks matched by the velvet of her gown, Elinor, in her frosted pink, Lucien Dorsay small and fastidious and fifty-five; and David, towering above them all, blue-eyed and gold-headed.

Reaching her room, she undressed slowly. It was a big room filled with mid-Victorian furniture. Francis Ordway had thought it best to leave the old country place as he had found it, a monument to the dignity and staid taste of those who had gone before him.

She bathed, brushed her shining hair, and wrapped in a warm robe went to Vicky's room, with Jerry stalking after her like a miniature tiger. A fire burned on Vicky's hearth and Vicky, still dressed and waiting, said, "I thought you'd never come."

"I can't stay. I'm dead for sleep Vicky."

Vicky looked at her. "Come and kiss me," she said. "Then run along to bed."

Vicky never forced confidences. There was something in the air, no doubt of it. Anne's flushed cheeks and shining eyes showed a mood of exaltation. But again Vicky was content to wait. She had waited before.

Anne lingered for a moment. "I was out with Garry."

"It's a wonderful night."

"Yes. But Garry isn't wonderful."

Vicky gave no outward sign of her satisfaction. "Some people might think him so," she vouchsafed.

"Then they think wrong," with emphasis. "Good night, old darling," and off Anne went with Jerry in her arms.

When she came to her room she went to the window and stood looking out. Down in the meadow the man who had called himself Charles was sleeping on his bed of pine. She wondered if she would ever know the rest of his name. Perhaps if she got up early and sought him he might be there. Yet he had sent her away, and that was the end of it.

Anne said her prayers, got into bed and lay there thinking of all that had happened since that dreadful moment in the garden.

She fell asleep at last, to be waked in the night by the sound of laughter and voices in the hall. Her mother was saying, "I'll pay my debts tomorrow, Lucien." Then the sound of the Dorsay's car and shouted farewells.

There was a long silence, then through the still house stole the tinkle of the old piano and her mother's voice, muted:

"To say what long you've known is true, I love but one alone, and 'tis you."

Anne looked at the clock on her little table. Two o'clock. It seemed strange that her mother should be singing there so late alone. She got out of bed and went into the hall. The music had stopped. Something drew her on until at last she reached the first landing of the stairway. From there she could see straight into the library. And from the landing she saw her mother standing on the hearth with David. And David's arms were around her mother!

Anne never knew how she got to Vicky's room. "Vicky, he kissed her! He kissed my mother!"

"My dear, my dear. . ."

Whispering, whispering, Anne told the things she had heard in the garden. "They said that David was in love with—Mother—and that she loved him. And that if Daddy found out, it would be the end of her."

Vicky said, "I must go down, Anne. If your father should come—"

She did not finish her sentence, but Anne knew. It was like a nightmare to lie there and watch Vicky getting into her clothes, hurrying, hurrying. And all the time the beast of the garden seemed to be crouching in the room.

It seemed a long time after Vicky had left the room that came through the open window the sound of David's steps on the gravel of the driveway. He always walked home across the fields.

She got up, looked out and watched him striding along and out of sight. After a while Anne caught the sound of her father's motor in the distance.

A little later he came into the house and she heard voices—his and her mother's and Vicky's. She did not know what was being said, and she dared not go down, so once more she curled up in Vicky's bed and waited.

And when Vicky came, she pulled the chain of the lamp and said, "Anne?"

"Yes?"

"You'd better run along to your room darling. We'll talk things over in the morning."

"I want to talk about them now, Vicky."

Vicky came and stood by the bed. Her face was white and there was a frightened look in her eyes.

Anne said, "Is it as bad as that?"

And Vicky said, "It is very bad, but we must try to make it better."

Vicky, going downstairs, had stopped on the landing and called, "Does anybody smell smoke?" For a moment, dead silence. Then Elinor had appeared on the threshold of the library.

"It's the logs in the fireplace, of course, Vicky," Elinor's voice held a touch of asperity.

Vicky, looking down at her, said, "I was afraid of a fire."

Descending the stairs and seeing David in front of the fire, she murmured an apology. So ingenious was her manner, so guileless her words, that he suspected nothing.

"Well, Elinor, I must be running along," David said.

When he was gone, Elinor said to Vicky, "You knew there wasn't a fire."

"I knew there was danger," The two women gazed steadily at each other and Elinor said,

Publication Required Under New Laws

Sacramento, Sept 26 - Two new laws which became effective September 19, will have far reaching effect in correcting practices by which unscrupulous business operators have profited largely, says the California News Bureau. It adds:

Of prime importance to those who have lost their properties through tax delinquencies is AB 1954 which requires the publication of three notices before tax-deeded properties may be sold. Similar laws were twice passed by the California legislature and twice vetoed by former governor Frank F. Merriam.

By reason of Governor Culbert L. Olson's signature to this measure, it no longer will be possible to arrange virtually private sales of tax deeded properties at which the purchasers buy up these properties at virtually their own price.

Under AB 1954, which amends section 3897 of the Political Code, it is mandatory to advertise in a newspaper of general circulation in the township where the property is located three notices of the proposed sale. These notices must be at least a week apart prior to the sale.

Thus any property owner, who has lost his property thru tax delinquency, will be adequately notified when it comes up for sale and may repurchase it if he is in a financial position to do so. Likewise, it will increase the state revenue from such sales by virtue of the fact that such sales will be widely advertised and desirable properties will, by their very nature, draw competitive bidding.

The second law, will give creditors a protection they long have sought in respect to bulk sales. Under the new law, AB 48, amending section 3440 of the Civil Code, notice of intention to sell or chattel mortgage stock in trade, in bulk, or a substantial part thereof, other than in the ordinary course of trade will require publication of a notice of such transaction.

At least seven days before the sale, transfer, assignment or mortgaging of such property a notice will have to be recorded with the county recorder in the county or counties in which the property is located. Subsequently, not less than two days before the transaction, a formal notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the township where the property is located.

The object of this new law is to protect creditors from fly-by-night concerns of all types which obtain credit on the stock and fixtures in their establishment and then transfer

"Well, what of it? My life is my own."

"But Anne?" "Is her happiness so much more important than mine?"

Vicky, standing in front of the fire, said, "I don't know. I only know that she has burned candles on your altar and you have blown them out."

"What do you mean?"

Tonight she saw David kiss you."

There was dead silence for a moment, then Elinor said, "She will have to know sometime. Do you think I am going on like this?"

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACTS OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, AND MARCH 3, 1933

of the Lakeside Farmer, published weekly, at Lakeside, California for October 1, 1939.

State of California )

County of San Diego ) ss

Before me, a notary public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Harold P. Sands, who having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of the Lakeside Farmer and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption required by the Act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the Act of March 3, 1933, embodied in section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse side of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, Harold P. Sands, Lakeside, California

Managing Editor, none

Business Manager, Winnifred S. Turner, Lakeside, California.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding one per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.)

Harold P. Sands, Lakeside, California.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgage, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities are: (Mrs.) Clara Maycox, Long Beach, California.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holder as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the twelve months preceding the date shown above is 375.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 25th day of September, 1939

New Way to Serve Eggplant

Eggplant's in season, so what could be more timely than this clever recipe? The undiluted Carnation Milk adds a knowing touch to the tasty stuffing.

Stuffed Eggplant

1 eggplant 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper 5 tbsp. Carnation Milk,
4 tbsp. butter undiluted
4 tbsp. cracker crumbs 1/4 cup grated cheese
Eggplant may be parboiled 5 minutes before scooping out, but the shell is firmer if this is not done. Cut slice from top or cut in half lengthwise. Remove pulp, add ingredients and refill shells. Cover with crumbs and cheese and bake in moderate oven. Temperature: 350° F. Time: 30 minutes. 6 servings.
